REMNANT NATIVE VEGETATION INVESTIGATION

The Remnant Native Vegetation Investigation concluded on 31 March 2011 when the final report was submitted to the Minister for Environment and Climate Change. In accordance with the Victorian Environmental Assessment Council Act 2001, the final report was made publicly available on 7 April 2011 and tabled in both Houses of Parliament on 24 May 2011.

The investigation commenced in July 2008 when VEAC received the terms of reference shown in the box [to the right]. In accordance with the terms of reference, the investigation focused on assessment and opportunities to achieve improved ecological connectivity across the 79 percent of Victoria outside largely intact landscapes.

In total, 194 written submissions were received throughout the investigation: 74 submissions in response to the notice of investigation and 120 submissions in response to the discussion paper.

The work program for the 2010-2011 year included:

- a sixty day period of public consultation following the publication of the discussion paper for the investigation on 28 June 2010 – including eight workshops (see below) and many presentations to stakeholders
- analysis of information and views provided by stakeholders through the public consultation process
- synthesis of recommendations for the final report, incorporating input from stakeholders, advisory groups, scientific analyses, and policy and action plans
- preparing material for the final report and finalising publication
- briefings as requested to Government and stakeholders in interpreting the final report.

A Community Reference Group and a Scientific Advisory Committee were set up in the early stages of the investigation and provided invaluable assistance to Council over the course of the investigation, both in formal meetings of the groups and on an informal basis where necessary. Both groups met twice during 2010-2011.

In addition, with the assistance of the Community Reference Group, workshops were held at eight locations in July and August 2010 as part of the public consultation following publication of the discussion paper: Benalla, Bendigo, Dandenong, Hamilton, Horsham, Melbourne, Mildura and Traralgon.

Expenditure, including salaries and on-costs, for the Remnant Native Vegetation Investigation for the 2010-2011 financial year was $402,677.

The Terms of Reference for the Remnant Native Vegetation Investigation are contained in the following box:

TERMS OF REFERENCE

Pursuant to section 15 of the Victorian Environmental Assessment Council Act 2001 the Minister for Environment and Climate Change hereby requests the Council to carry out an investigation of remnant native vegetation on Crown land and public authority land outside of largely-intact landscapes* across Victoria to identify opportunities for ecological linkages.

The purposes of the investigation are to:

- a identify and evaluate the condition, values, resources and uses of these areas of remnant native vegetation and associated fauna outside largely intact landscapes;
- b assess these areas for their connectivity and contribution to sustainable landscapes in relation to climate change;
- c report on the contribution of these areas of remnant native vegetation to biodiversity conservation, recreation activities, community uses, commercial opportunities, services and utilities in the context of improving connectivity with largely-intact landscapes and freehold land; and
- d report on opportunities for management to achieve improved ecological connectivity.

In addition to the considerations specified in Section 18 of the VEAC Act, the Council must also take into consideration relevant State Government policies, programs, strategies and Ministerial Statements, and relevant regional programs, strategies and plans.

The Council is required to consult the community in accordance with the VEAC Act, to release a Discussion Paper, and to submit a Final Report on the results of its investigation. The Final Report must be submitted by March 2011.

* Largely-intact landscapes have been defined for the purposes of Net Gain Accounting for the Native Vegetation Management Framework as 'contiguous areas of native vegetation greater than 20,000 ha, with high Landscape Context scores and Site Condition scores that are high (or if scores are not high, this is primarily due to natural or semi-natural disturbances)'

METROPOLITAN MELBOURNE INVESTIGATION

The Metropolitan Melbourne Investigation began in July 2008, following a formal request to VEAC from the Minister for Environment and Climate Change. The investigation area comprises public land within 29 municipalities of metropolitan Melbourne. The terms of reference for the investigation are shown in the box to the right.

In April 2011, the Minister extended the completion date for the investigation for two months to 1 August 2011.

In total, 313 written submissions have been received throughout the investigation: 123 submissions in response to the notice of investigation and 190 submissions in response to the discussion paper.

The work program for the 2010-2011 year included:

- preparing the Metropolitan Melbourne Investigation Discussion Paper, which was released for public comment in October 2010
- conducting meetings with the public, local council staff and public authorities and other stakeholders following the release of the discussion paper
- engaging with public authorities on their public land holdings and a range of issues relevant to the investigation
- analysing submissions received in response to the discussion paper
- updating the public land and open space databases for the investigation area
- preparing material for the Metropolitan Melbourne Investigation Final Report, which is to be submitted to the Minister for Environment and Climate Change and publicly released in August 2011.

The Community Reference Group for the investigation met once during 2010-2011.

Expenditure, including salaries and on-costs, for the Metropolitan Melbourne Investigation for the 2010-2011 financial year was $869,024.

TERMS OF REFERENCE

The purposes of the metropolitan Melbourne investigation are to:

- a systematically identify and assess the uses, resources, condition, values and management of Crown land, and public authority land in metropolitan Melbourne;
- b assess values of Crown land, and public authority land for areas not committed to a specific use, and report on appropriate future uses relevant to Melbourne's liveability and natural values; and
- c report on the contribution of Crown land, and public authority land to Melbourne's liveability and opportunities for enhancement of this contribution.

In addition to the considerations specified in section 18 of the VEAC Act, the Council would need to take into account the following matters:

- relevant State Government policies, programs, strategies and Ministerial Statements relating to the use of open space in Melbourne, including Melbourne 2030 and Planning for all of Melbourne and Linking People & Spaces;
- public authority plans and strategies such as the Port Phillip Catchment Management Authority Regional Catchment Strategy and Native Vegetation Plan; and
- land required by transport and other utilities for their functions and appropriate access for social, recreational and community activities.

The Council is required to consult with the community in accordance with the VEAC Act, to release a Discussion Paper, and to submit a Final Report on the results of its investigation.

The Final Report must be submitted by 1 August 2011.

40 YEARS

1 April 2011 marked 40 years since the first meeting of VEAC's predecessor, the Land Conservation Council (LCC). On 31 March 2011 Minister Ryan Smith joined VEAC Chairperson Duncan Malcolm to celebrate the anniversary with former ministers, chairs, council members, staff, and representatives from community, science, public service and industry.

The Land Conservation Council was established by the Bolte government in 1971 to provide advice on public land use. At the first meeting of the Council on 1 April 1971 Minister Bill Borthwick told the new councillors to make their recommendations on the use of public land "as if for a thousand years". One of the 12 council members from that first meeting, Dr David Wishart, then Director of Agriculture, was an honoured guest at the celebration this year.

Former and current Chairs and Victoria's Commissioner for Environmental Sustainability Prof Kate Auty reflected on an organisation that has had a profound effect on the way Victorians perceive and use public land, literally changing the map of Victoria. "The Land Conservation Council and its successors the Environment Conservation Council and the Victorian Environmental Assessment Council have transformed the manner in which Victoria manages its public land and natural resources," the Minister said. "The model pioneered by the Land Conservation Council meant the use of public land was not decided in an ad hoc manner but reviewed systematically on the basis of comprehensive information and public input. This process has seen our state lead the way in public land use planning in Australia."

The Minister also highlighted the impetus that the LCC studies and investigations provided for flora and fauna work in Victoria from the 1970s onwards. The surveys conducted for the LCC by scientists based at the Museum, the Herbarium and the Arthur Rylah Institute were an enormous boost to the flora and fauna databases for this state, he said.

As a tribute to the vision of Bill Borthwick, Australia's first Minister for Conservation, VEAC has established the Bill Borthwick Student Scholarships. These scholarships are intended to assist with some of the costs of research for students undertaking Honours, Masters or PhD research projects relating to public land in Victoria in the fields of natural sciences, humanities and social sciences, economics or politics. Applications for the first round will be advertised later in 2011.

OTHER ACTIVITIES

Public land use records management and large-scale mapping

VEAC and the former ECC and LCC have completed 37 investigations over 40 years. Those Government-accepted recommendations of VEAC and its predecessors provide a framework for use and management of almost all public land across Victoria. Recommendations from these investigations have largely applied a consistent set of public land use categories, as appropriate to each investigation area, and evolved over time. DSE, Parks Victoria and others manage public land in accordance with the uses, and public land use boundaries, specified by past VEAC, ECC and LCC government-accepted recommendations.

VEAC's website www.veac.vic.gov.au includes VEAC's and ECC's final reports and maps, and versions of all LCC final recommendation reports annotated to show Government decisions. There are also recommendation maps for each LCC investigation, scanned as published. Further work has focused on a dataset known as VEACRECS25.

Public land managers, other agencies using public land, local government, industry, consultants and other land users increasingly need large-scale (at least 1:25,000 scale) mapping of public land categories, to clarify boundaries and appropriate uses. The VEACRECS25 dataset provides accurate digital mapping of Government-accepted VEAC, ECC, and LCC recommendations for such purposes.

Information is initially compiled using the VicMap digital parcel layer. VEAC has taken over the compilation role this year. Provisional data has now been compiled for all Crown land parcels in Victoria. VEAC staff validate and confirm or correct the public land use for each parcel, providing detailed boundaries using VEAC, ECC and LCC records and digital aerial imagery, as required.

Progress was slower this year as the focus moved to Gippsland where the cadastre – and existing park and reserve boundary mapping – are substantially less accurate than in western and northern Victoria. Accordingly, VEAC staff had to make many more corrections than in previous municipalities processed. This year, 9,480 public land parcels in Hindmarsh, Horsham, West Wimmera, Yarriambiack and East Gippsland Shires have been checked, returned to DSE, and along with data for Wellington Shire, processed for loading into the Department's MapShare Intranet website.

VEACRECS25 public land use data has now been completed for 59,270 parcels in 61 of Victoria's 79 municipalities, representing 75 per cent of all Victorian Crown parcels. Two more shires have been provisionally loaded into MapShare prior to verification. Updating of early data using the new data model is underway, and some amendments have been processed to maintain the data. The mapping and associated data are available for all DSE staff. This project is scheduled for completion during 2011-12.
